

Right Beside Me

Lonely life, lonely moments
'Cause you were nowhere near.
Fears I had made me doubt
That I ever would have you.

Now you're here right beside me.
I have nothing to fear,
Only rejoice, and I sing a song for you.
'Cause the moment that you came to me
You light up my life with love.

You will see, I will give you
All that is good for you.
Your good heart will always have
Peace from knowing I love you.

I will watch while you're sleeping;
You have nothing to fear.
Only rejoice, and I sing a song for you.
'Cause the moment that you came to me
You light up my life with love.

Make It Stop

Just 'cause you were greedy
And you wanted more than I,
You spoiled my life.

Lots of time invested,
I believed in you,
But now you broke that trust.

Ah! make it stop, make it go,
Once and for all
'Cause it hurts me and all.

Friends of yours have helped you,
But that aid has not worked out
To save me too.

All I want is fairness,
A chance to start again,
But you keep hunting me.

Steps

Going down the steep hills
Trying to make it there,
I worry you may fall down and hurt yourself.

And you try hard to leave on time,
So that you won't have to run,
But it doesn't help, there's still that slope.

I must find ways to trust you and me.
I must try hard to see that you care so for me.

Coming home there're those hills to climb
That you can't avoid at all.
There's no straight place here; there is no hope.

I must find ways to trust your steps,
Know you care and love me
So that you will take care of yourself.

Living Your Dreams

Dreams that come true come true
'Cause you dreamed.
You have the chance to believe in them.
Make them come true.

Words that you say to yourself can be
Lies and affect
The results you get
'Cause you believed.

Only yourself can live your life.
Make it what you have been dreaming.

Love everyone that comes
Through your path,
And you'll have joy sharing love with them
Your dreams will come true.

Vegetables in Chinatown

My life changed when I saw your face
Glowing in Chinatown, one Tuesday.
Your smile so warm made me feel nice,
And I smiled back at you; you liked that.

I bought some carrots and some lime,
I was in Chinatown, the market.
You chose some bok choy and zucchini,
You picked fresh tomatoes for salad.

But when we paid our eyes never met again.
You took your vegetables and disappeared.
Perhaps you will not return to Chinatown,
You were a tourist who was passing by.

Now, I go back to Chinatown,
And I look for your face when shopping.
But never again have I seen
Your warm eyes shinning at me and your smile.

I buy tomatoes and zucchini
And pick fresh tomatoes, remembering.
I love to shop in Chin-a-town,
But, I would like to find you again there.

Moving On

Too many hills;
Will she ever make it there?
What's the use, she doesn't have faith.
No, oh, no.

Why should she try?
Can she go back where she's safe?
Why start again? She's got it all made here.
No, oh, no.

Can't miss the chance, must not be afraid,
Instead be brave and look ahead.
Her heart will find plenty of love,
Exploring the unknown and giving others joy.
Yes, oh, yes.

They won't forget.
They will stay true to their friend.
Miles and days can't stop love from growing.
No, oh, no.

Some day she'll see
How good it is to fight through fear.
With love and faith her spirit will be free.
Yes, oh, yes.

It Will Last

By myself all I think of is you and your face.
I feel you're so happy with me by your side.
I know you're afraid it won't last, that I'll change.

Take your fears away and trust
That my love will stay and last.
Can't be another way, at all,
Only you can be my love.

It'd Have to Be

I have a cat who likes to nap.
She likes to play while taking breaks.
She's very sweet and very loving.
She likes to eat only the best.

Her name is Lucy, and she's in shape.
Her only worry is to look great.
Her love for me is quite sincere.
She makes me happy and stops my tears.

If I could choose a life for me
To be like Lucy it'd have to be.
I'd strive to rest and look my best
While playing with my love all day.

Instead of waking up at five,
I could stay home and nap with you.
Then, we could play and take a break
To drink some wine and also dine.

My name could be just Pussycat.
I'd exercise to look my best.
You'd know my love for you is great,
And you'd be happy having me near.

Trust

I know your love for me is great.
That's how I know you'll help me through.

I'm not alone; I know you're there.
I've felt your presence in my life.

Without Me

How can you say you love me more
If you can be without me?
How can you say you want me more
If I need your love, my darling?

Days are so lonely when you are gone away
where I can't reach you at all.

I feel so lost without you,
But you seem to manage not having me near.

You have no trouble when we say good-bye
And part from each other each time.

Yet I'm glad you don't love me more
'Cause I don't want you to feel pain, not my pain.

I know that I do love you more
'Cause I can't stand waiting to see you again.

I know that you don't love me more
'Cause you don't mind waiting to see me again.
